Lucy Siegle,

environment columnist and reporter on BBC’s ‘The One Show’

The whole world is waking up to how much nature and the environment matter to us.

Here in York, people are finding out how to use our natural resources more wisely, leading to a greater protection of our wildlife and landscapes.

St Nicks is a hidden gem close to the centre of York. Over the last 20 years, a group of committed and enthusiastic people have:

- Built a pioneering environment centre showing sustainability in action
- Transformed a landfill site into an award winning nature reserve as seen on TV's 'The One Show'
- Improved the quality of lives in York through the training of environmental skills and by offering exciting volunteer opportunities
- Developed a nationally acclaimed low impact recycling service
- Launched the highly successful composting service, York Rotters
- Developed close links with partner organisations

Over the next 10 years, St Nicks wants to raise funds for:

- Upgrading and improving the Environment Centre
- Enhancing the nature reserve as a haven for wildlife
- Expanding our environmental education links with schools and the local community
- Becoming a central hub for environmental action in York
- Playing a key role in helping to make York a sustainable city

Living sustainably is achievable, healthy and fun. St Nicks' aim is to lead by example and inspire everyone in York to join in.
